Livia Schultz is BTI Scholarship Recipient

Livia Schultz is BTI Scholarship Recipient

Livia Schultz, a Wheatland/Grinnell High School senior, has been selected as a recipient of the Bucklin Tractor & Implement (BTI) Agriculture Scholarship. This scholarship program prioritizes students who are affiliates of their local FFA chapter and are actively involved in school and community activities. This scholarship also considers the high school student's leadership, academic achievements, and career goals. Each applicant completes an essay that addresses how agriculture has affected their development, characteristics, lifestyle, and work ethic.

BTI realizes that the cost of higher education continues to increase, and BTI wants to help support area students who want to pursue a degree in an agricultural field. Any student located in the BTI service area is eligible for the scholarship. The specific criteria include a minimal cumulative GPA of 2.5, affiliation with their local FFA chapter, and aspirations to pursue a degree in an agriculture-related field at a two-year or four-year institution.

While at Wheatland/Grinnell High School, Livia has been involved in various activities. She participated in volleyball, basketball, and track and field. She served as National Honor Society Vice President, Student Council Vice President, FCCLA President, and Senior Class President. She served as Secretary and Treasurer for her local FFA chapter. She was awarded Western Kansas Liberty League honors, was named the 2019 Nex-Tech Washington D.C. Youth Tour contest winner and the 2020 Voice of Democracy essay contest winner. Livia is a member of the Grainfield United Methodist Church and has assisted with food drives, blood drives, and other community projects.

"Livia has been an amazing student in our building and has been a strong leader for all activity programs and athletic teams she has been involved in," said Wheatland/Grinnell High School principal, Todd Flinn. "Livia is very deserving of this scholarship."

This fall, Livia plans to attend Colby Community College, where she plans to pursue a degree in Business and play volleyball. She then plans to attend Washburn University School of Law to pursue a degree in Estate Law with an emphasis in Agriculture. When asked what she was most excited about for college, Livia said, "I cannot wait to be at Colby next year, and it's even a bonus I will get to play volleyball! I am excited to see what opportunities will be at my grasp and watch what success I will be able to have with them!" Livia added, "After graduating from Colby I am eager to begin the process of becoming an Estate Lawyer to see what better understanding I can bring to the local community in agriculture." Congratulations, Livia! We cannot wait to see all that you accomplish!

A $4,000.00 Farm Credit of Western Kansas, ACA Mark Winger Scholarship, has been awarded to Lauren Patmon. Lauren is the daughter of Lane and Amy Patmon and plans to attend Kansas State University to major in kinesiology and then attend chiropractic school.

The Board of Directors of Farm Credit of Western Kansas, ACA, Colby, Kansas, has established a scholarship program in support of the agricultural community of Northwest Kansas. Dally Poe, a senior at Triplains High School, was also a scholarship recipient.

Ethan Shea Receives Rudd Scholarship

By Judy Rogers

Golden Plains Senior Ethan Shea was recently notified that he has won one of 30 Rudd Foundation Scholarships for the Class of 2022 in the state of Kansas. There were over 1000 applicants for this year's award. This prestigious scholarship will cover the full cost of his four-year education at Wichita State University starting this fall. The value of his award is estimated to be $100,000.

Ethan has embraced the Rudd motto of "Grit, Determination, Work Ethic" throughout school. "I have worked hard to get where I am now," said Shea. "I am determined to be successful."

Shea is the second Golden Plains graduate to receive this award in the past three years. Taryn Fleckenstein received it in 2020. "I applied for this scholarship because I knew Taryn had received it," continued Shea. "That made me believe it was possible. The application process is extensive but worth the work!" He had to write two separate essays and submit records of his Community Service, Leadership, Awards, Athletics, and Reference Letters.

"I could not have done this without the support of our school staff and community," added Shea. "Coach (Travis) Smith and Mr. (Steiner) Scott have both been very supportive and are role models for me. Mrs. (Mindy) Fleckenstein was also helpful in completing all the application information."

Ethan plans to obtain a bachelor's degree in dental hygiene while at WSU with the possibility of applying to dental school to become a dentist. The Rudd Foundation will not only pay for his schooling but will provide mentorship to Ethan as he works toward his future.

Thorpe says he found the papers, and had a good time.

J. R. Reed is on a business trip to Red Cloud Nebraska.

Kenneth Turner is ill. Dr. Winternitz is attending him.

M. A. Rich fixed our wind mill and pump last Wednesday.

C. C. Evans was a pleasant caller on Tuesday.

He will plant about 150 acres of corn this spring.

E. C. Clearman has moved to the country, and Tom has taken his place on the milk wagon and is living in town.

H. Patterson was in town last Monday, and says that he thinks the bond matter will be settled to suit all persons who are interested.

J. M. Logan still owns Hamburg Jr. the large gray stallion, and he will give notice through the columns of the paper where he can be found through the season.

Campbell & Stith have placed in their butcher shop one of the best refrigerators that is made, and will, during the summer, have their beef in fine order, and in good shape for sale.

Martin Ping was a caller last Tuesday, and reports large crops being planted in his part of the country also that they have large expectations.

E. C. Cowser, son of James, formerly known as "Chick," was in the city last week on a visit to his many friends. He will stay home with his parents during the summer.

A. C. Heath, for a long time employed in the Democrat office as a "typo," left last Sabbath for his old home, and a visit to his parents in New York State. Bert was a good boy and we can cheerfully recommend him to everyone as a steady and honorable young man who has left many friends in Sheridan county.

H. E. Colby has put up a windmill at his place.

W. F. Schultheis is in the south part of the state on business.

The board of county commissioners will meet in regular session next Monday.

Charlie Arnold has received a fine lot of wall paper containing all the latest styles and figures. Call and see him and get prices.

The bond men, of Sheridan township, endeavored to call the commissioners together on last Tuesday. But owing to Mr. Geisenhener being away from home it had to be postponed until next Monday at the regular session.

The machinery for moving the bank building is in place, and before another issue of our paper the bank will be on the other corner opposite, so says W. R. Moore the contractor.

The safe of the state bank is now in the street and will be on its new location by this evening.

Miss Ollie Tucker will teach the Alcyone school this summer.

125 Years Ago
April 8, 1897

Miss Grace Hill and Miss Bertha Thompson, of Morland, old time acquaintances of Mrs. A. L. McCallum, spent several days in Hoxie last week.

J. M. Deupree received a telegram from his brother Joe, at Topeka, the other day stating that Ed had undergone an operation for appendicitis and was not expected to survive. A later dispatch states the Ed's condition is slightly improved.

Will Coffey, of Lucerne, was rain bound a couple of days in Hoxie last week.

The Honorable Board of County Commissioners will meet in regular session next Monday.

Clem Wilson succeeded in bringing down two swan on the south fork one day last week.

The dedication of the Catholic church in Solomon township will take place on Easter Sunday.

Charley Johnson, an old time Sheridan countyite, braved the rain and came to Hoxie yesterday.

From March 1, 1896, to March 1, 1897, there were four deaths, two births, and no marriages in Kenneth township.

Fred Taylor, foreman of the Palladium, is spending the week with his parents, near Dresden, being called there by the sickness of his brother, Oscar.

A. J. Massingall of Logan came in Monday to inquire about his subscription and reported prosperity in sight if the rains continue in his neighborhood. He says his son Uly who went to Illinois last year would like to be back to Kansas.

The pump, windmill and tank at the city water works have recently been generally overhauled and repaired and are now in better shape for the accommodation of the public than they have been since their erection about four years ago. Now if a main was laid from the tank to main street and along that street from Sheridan avenue north and south a block, we would have a very fair system of water works which would furnish ample fire protection, besides being convenient to the majority of business houses.

Seguin Squibs

Roy Long made a flying trip to Norton last week.

Ruf Trimble has closed his school in the Hoffeditz district and some of the scholars from that district are attending school at the Star.

Miss Mary Cheney who has been living with her grandmother in the eastern part of the state has come to live with her father at Seguin.

Selden Department

Mrs. P. F. Welch intends making a visit to friends in Iowa in the near future.

The Selden boys are having considerable amusement out of the boxing gloves of late.

AG Derek Schmidt Statement on Legislature Passing 'Sanctuary City' Bill

Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt issued the following statement on the March 30, 29-10 passage by the Senate of House Bill 2717, which restricts local "sanctuary" jurisdictions. The bill passed the House of Representatives last week 84-38:

"I appreciate the strong and bipartisan support for this legislation in both the Senate and the House of Representatives. Neither our nation's broken immigration system nor the Biden administration's ongoing failure to secure our national borders justifies a patchwork of local rules that prevent law enforcement agencies from cooperating with federal officials. Nor does it justify local governments issuing identification cards that can be used statewide but lack basic anti-fraud protections. This commonsense legislation should become law."

FHSU Preparing for Annual Local Collegiate Rodeo

By FHSU University Communications

For the second time in four years, the Fort Hays State University rodeo is falling on Easter weekend. So Bronc Rumford and his coaching team moved the annual event up a day.

The rodeo is usually scheduled for the third weekend - Friday through Sunday - of April at Doug Philip Arena. This year, it will run from Thursday through Saturday.

FHSU hosts the second-to-last rodeo on the Central Plains Region circuit, with the Panhandle State event in Guymon, Okla., concluding the regular season the following week. Competitors who finish in the top four in total points in each event at the end of the regular season advance to the College National Finals Rodeo June 12-18 in Casper, Wyo.

"Most of the rodeos in our region stay on the same dates every year," Rumford said. "It would be a lot of re-scheduling if we moved it. It's easier to make adjustments on the days of the week for our rodeo than to completely change dates."

The annual church service - Cowboy Church - ordinarily held on Sunday morning, is scheduled for 5 p.m. Saturday.

Qualifying slack performances will begin at 9 a.m. Friday and Saturday with public performances at 7:00 each of those nights.

Rodeo events for the nearly 500 competitors from 22 schools in the Central Plains Region are: bareback bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping, cowgirl's barrel racing, cowgirls' breakaway roping, saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling, team roping, and tie-down roping.

Advanced tickets can be purchased at the Student Service Center in FHSU's Memorial Union; Orscheln Farm & Home, 2900 Broadway Ave.; and Vanderbilt's, 2704 Vine.

Advance ticket prices are $10 for adults and $5 for children. Prices at the gate will be $12 (adults) and $8 (children). FHSU students are admitted free with their Tiger ID card.

LaTurner Slams Biden for Lifting Title 42

Congressman Jake LaTurner issued the following statement after the Biden Administration's announcement that the United States is lifting Title 42 restrictions at our southern border on May 23, 2022:

"By lifting Title 42 restrictions, President Biden has doubled down on his reckless open-border agenda. Title 42 was one of the few tools DHS had at its disposal to quickly expel migrants who have entered the country illegally and was vital in helping contain the national security and humanitarian crisis at our southern border," said Congressman LaTurner. "Title 42 should remain in place until the record number of illegal border crossings drops to a manageable level for our brave law enforcement officers."

Background:

- Under Title 42, it can take 15 minutes to deport an illegal border crosser.
- Under its alternative, Title 8, that process could balloon to 50 hours for a single adult and 62 hours for a family unit.
- In February alone, 55% of the total encounters at the Southern Border were processed for expulsion under Title 42.
- DHS officials are preparing for up to 18,000 migrants per day crossing the southern border once Title 42 restrictions are lifted.

Rep. Mann Challenges Farm Killer Tax

On March 30, during National Agriculture Month, U.S. Representative Tracey Mann (KS-01) spoke on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives, drawing attention to dangerous tax provisions included in President Biden's proposed Fiscal Year 2023 budget.

The President's budget includes provisions threatening the stepped-up basis and imposing capital gains taxes on property such as farms, ranches, and businesses that have been held in the family for 90 years or more. This new tax on unrealized gains would inflict hundreds of thousands of dollars in new capital gains taxes on hardworking Americans and jeopardize family-owned agricultural businesses.

"Farming is a multi-generational calling," said Rep. Mann. "The ideas in this budget - threatening the stepped-up basis and imposing the new Farm Killer Tax - will destroy the livelihoods of producers in Kansas and across the country. In 1940, the average cost of Kansas farmland was $50 per acre. Now, irrigated land is over $4,000 per acre. This new tax is not just a game-changer for thousands of family farms - it is a game-ender."

Yesterday, Representative Mann led a resolution with 73 of his colleagues that supports the preservation of the stepped-up basis, opposes any new efforts to impose new taxes on family farms and small businesses, and recognizes the importance of generational transfers of farm and small business operations.

Bill Passes Regulating Pharmacy Benefit Managers

Kansas Attorney General Derek Schmidt today issued the following statement regarding legislative passage of Senate Bill 28, which would regulate pharmacy benefit managers (PBMs) operating in Kansas. The bill was approved earlier this week 120-2 in the House of Representatives and 39-0 in the Senate:

"Our office successfully fought at the U.S. Supreme Court to defend the authority of states to regulate pharmacy benefits managers, and I am encouraged Kansas is now exercising that authority. At the attorney general's office, we are holding PBMs accountable for unlawful business practices that have cost Kansas taxpayers tens of millions of dollars through public healthcare programs. This bill will provide similar protections for Kansans throughout our state, including many independent pharmacies. I commend legislators of both parties who worked together to get this job done."

In 2020, Schmidt filed a U.S. Supreme Court brief in support of Arkansas's authority to regulate PBMs. Later that year, the states prevailed in the case, Rutledge v. Pharmaceutical Care Management Association.

Last year, Schmidt announced a settlement with Centene over its PBM services in the state Medicaid program, recovering nearly $27.6 million for Kansas taxpayers. Additional investigations are ongoing.

Progressivism as the New Marxism

By Corey Lee Wilson, Corey Lee Wilson

October 6, 2020

As in Marx's older drama, the moral imperative of progressives is to once again "set things right." In Marx's time this was the task of revolutionaries. Today this task falls to progressive politicians and activists, social justice reformers, civil rights workers, cultural appropriation enforcers, diversity, and inclusion warriors and the like who have spread into the media, government, college campuses, neighborhood organizations and workplaces.

Marxist revolutionaries sought to set things right by leading a revolution to overthrow the capitalist system and replace it with a just economic system. Progressives want to set things right through social change in order to create a just society. In a just society everyone is equal: men and women, immigrants and native-born, persons of various racial and ethnic groups, heterosexuals, and homosexuals, first and third world people, disabled and able-bodied. This will be a society free from the "isms" of sexism, nativism, racism, heterosexism, colonialism, and ableism.

To the progressive, the success of the newly liberated oppressed person must not be limited by the extent of his talent or effort. Success is merited by the very existence of his membership in an oppressed group. As in Marxist theory—"from each according to his ability, to each according to his needs"—even people of lesser abilities and efforts deserve equal outcomes. The progressive sees anything less than this as failure.

Undergirding all this is the assumption that a just society will be gained through the intervention of government. Only government can force the needed changes. This is achieved through a complex and extensive web of government mechanisms: civil rights laws; affirmative action programs; minimum wage laws; housing assistance; guaranteed income; income maintenance programs that seamlessly transfer wealth from haves to have-nots; block grants to states; guaranteed health care for all; national disaster relief....and more.

Per Dr. Berger, "In the progressive view there is little tolerance for government that cannot deliver equal outcomes for all. However, every human being is unique and not standardized widgets, so ultimately, government is incapable of creating a society of equals (which is impossible)"

The Critical Method of the Frankfurt School Fuels Progressivism

Some of the key issues and philosophical preoccupations of the Frankfurt School's Critical Theory and methods involve the critique of modernity and capitalist society, the definition of social emancipation, as well as the detection of the pathologies of society. The academic influence of Critical Theory throughout America's academia provides the foundation for today's progressivism thought, issues, and actions.

These foundations were influenced by Marxism and/or inherently Marxist in nature.

For a sapient being and follower of the Scientific Method—Critical Theory is a far-left social philosophy pertaining to the reflective assessment and critique of society and culture in order to reveal and challenge power structures. A primary criticism of the theory is that it is anti-scientific, both for its lack of the use of the scientific method, and for its overt criticism of science as a tool used for oppression of marginalized groups of people.

The first generation of Marxist Frankfurt School philosophers, particularly Herbert Marcuse and Jürgen Habermas, have influenced generations within the American academy and its students throughout, and turned global, influencing methodological approaches in other European academic contexts and disciplines after World War II.

It was during this phase that Richard Bernstein, a second-generation Frankfurt School philosopher and contemporary of Habermas, embraced the research agenda of Critical Theory and significantly helped its development in American universities (after the initial influence of Marcuse) when he joined in 1989 the graduate

The Color of Autumn

By Anna Godek, Staff Reporter

Evangeline Godek went to Topeka on March 26 to be recognized at the Blick Awards. Godek received an honorable mention for her print titled, "The Color of Autumn." The print was a photo she took near her house of a pumpkin.

On a day her art teacher, Mrs. Schultz, was gone Evangeline did not feel like printing. She noticed her classmates were water painting, so she decided too as well. Godek just did this for fun, but the water paint turned out to be a great background for her print. The piece was sent to State and received a gold medal. Mrs. Schultz then sent it on to Nationals and the Blick Awards. Evangeline, her mom, dad, and Mrs. Schultz all attended the award ceremony. Godek said, "I was really nervous going in front of the crowd, especially when you don't know what other artists think about your piece. I am really glad I went through." She received a certificate, gift card to Michaels, and a ribbon for her beautiful piece.

Godek thinks her art skills came from both her mom and dad. Her mom, Nicole, went to art school and does graphic design, while her dad doodles. She was very proud to share the special moment with her parents and Mrs. Schultz.

Godek said, "I am grateful for Mrs. Schultz helping me with my piece and entering me in the contest."

She spoiled the school with donuts, and she celebrated her anniversary! Paula is always there if anyone in the building needs anything and she is selfless day in and day out.

Thank you, Paula, for an amazing thirty years of dedication to our district. The school could truly not get by without you!

Commodity Highlight—Barley

April 7 is National Beer Day, so it's fitting to celebrate an important ingredient in many alcoholic beverages: barley. Barley may not be the first crop one thinks of in terms of Kansas's agricultural production, but it's still an important crop to our state's ag industry. Feel free to check out these facts about barley production in Kansas while you responsibly celebrate National Beer Day this Thursday.

Kansas harvested 4,000 acres of barley in 2021, making it a 1.3-million-dollar year.

At an average of 66 bushels per acre, there were a total of 264,000 bushels produced last year.

Though barley may not be prominent in production when compared to crops like corn, wheat, and soybeans, it still has a prominent role in alcohol production and as a fodder feedstuff.

Kansas Hog Inventory Down 7%

Kansas inventory of all hogs and pigs on March 1, 2022, was 1.85 million head, according to the USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service.

This was down 7% from March 1, 2021, and down 7% from December 1, 2021.

Breeding hog inventory, at 155,000 head, was down 9% from March 1, 2021, and down 6% from last quarter. Market hog inventory, at 1.70 million head, was down 7% from last year, and down 7% from last quarter.

The December 2021 - February 2022 Kansas pig crop, at 818,000 head, was down 7% from 2021. Sows farrowed during the period totaled 81,000 head, down 4% from last year. The average pigs saved per litter was 10.10 for the December - February period, compared to 10.50 last year.

Kansas hog producers intend to farrow 81,000 sows during the March - May 2022 quarter, down 8% from the actual farrowings during the same period a year ago. Intended farrowings for June - August 2022 are 78,000 sows, down 11% from the actual farrowings during the same period a year ago.

All hay acreage to be harvested is expected to total 2.75 million acres, up 2% from last year's acreage.

Sunflower producers expect to plant 44,000 acres, up 26% from 2021. Oil varieties account for 29,000 acres, up 16% from a year ago. Non-oil varieties made up the balance of 15,000 acres, up 50% from the previous year.

Oat intentions are estimated at 150,000 acres, up 30% from last year.

Canola planted acreage is expected to be 9,000 acres, up 29% from 2021.

Barley area planted is expected to be 11,000 acres, down 21% from last year.

Cotton producers expect to plant 115,000 acres, up 5% from a year ago.

Estimates in this report are based on a survey conducted during the first two weeks of March.

Ask Congress to Expand Rural Broadband

Rural broadband is a critical pathway to global markets for agriculture and other industries. Farmers and ranchers depend on broadband just as they do highways, railways, and waterways.

Farmers need increased mobile broadband coverage to be more efficient, economical, and environmentally sustainable. Broadband connectivity allows farmers and ranchers to use cloud-connected equipment that indicates soil conditions, weather, and the positioning of equipment. This key information not only helps them make data-driven business decisions, but it also helps improve sustainability by allowing farmers to very specifically target their water, fertilizer and crop protection use and plant seeds to achieve optimal yield.

Learn more here about the issue at <https://bit.ly/3NQey2w>.

Ask your members of Congress to support:

- H.R. 3369, the Broadband for Rural America Act. This legislation will provide additional investments in USDA rural broadband programs while prioritizing rural areas most underserved.

- S. 1695, the Eliminating Barriers to Rural Internet Development Grant Eligibility (EBRIDGE) Act. This legislation removes hurdles for broadband projects, including difficult last-mile efforts that often delay rural broadband deployment.

- The House passed H.R. 3193, the EBRIDGE Act, in November 2021.

Corn Planting

By Keith VanSkike, Twin Creeks Extension District, Agronomy and Natural Resources Agent

In many situations, the evolution of the seed rate increases as you have more availability of water, or more precipitation.

In Kansas seeding rates vary from as few as 15,000 seeds per acre in western Kansas, to as many as 28 to 30,000 seeds per acre in the eastern side of the state.

But choosing the maximum seeding rate for a region is not always the best decision. Especially on limited resources.

If more than about 5% of the plants are barren or if most ears have fewer than 250 kernels per ear, the corn seeding rate may be too high. If there are consistently more than 600 kernels per ear or if most plants have a second ear contributing significantly to grain yield, the corn seeding rate may be too low.

Of course, the growing conditions will influence ear number and ear size as well, so it is important to factor in the growing conditions for that season when interpreting these plant responses. In addition to the growing conditions, nutrient status can also influence the final number of grains per ear. For example, severe nitrogen deficiency will have a high impact on the final number of grains, ear size and ear number.

When other factors are more limiting, increasing seeding rates way beyond the maximum may not influence your return on more bushels.

Keep in mind that the potential ear size and potential number of kernel (1,000-1,200 per ear) are set before silking, but the actual final number of kernels is not determined until after pollination and early grain fill due to relative success of fertilization and degree of early abortion.

Think about your optimal seeding rate; when you go way beyond the optimal seeding rate...you make your crop more dependent on precipitation and other factors.

Food Stamp Controversies Persist

Senate Agriculture Committee Chairwoman Debbie Stabenow (D-MI) and Ranking Republican Member John Boozman (R-AR) said this week at the Agri-Pulse Ag and Food Summit that they are planning to write a new Farm Bill in 2023. Sen. Stabenow said there will be field hearings in her home state and in Senator Boozman's home state in the next few months and the Committee will hold hearings on each title of the Farm Bill. Senator Stabenow added a substantive note to her comments on timing that, "We are not going to cut nutrition." The remark was reportedly in response to House Agriculture Committee Ranking Republican Member, Rep. Glenn "GT" Thompson (R-PA) who said he would not rule out cutting Food Stamp funding due to the Biden Administration's $250 billion increase in benefits last August.

Roots and Chutes

By Alyssa Rippe-May, Twin Creeks Extension District Agent – Interim Director, Livestock and Farm Management

The Chute... "Cattle Lice"

Have you struggled with cattle lice on your operation this winter and spring? You are certainly not alone. Dr. A.J. Tarhoff, K-State Research and Extension Beef Veterinarian, gives an overview below of options to control lice in your cattle herd.

Cattle lice infections can affect the health and performance of our cows and stocker cattle during the winter months. This time period generally ranges from December through March. The USDA has estimated that livestock producers lose up to $125 million per year due to effects of lice infestations. Not only can they be the cause of direct animal performance losses, but they also increase wear and tear on our facilities and fences. The direct losses to cattle come in forms of decreased average daily gains (documented 0.25 pounds per day reduction in growing calves), skin infections, and potentially blood loss and anemia.

There are two different types of lice that infect cattle. Biting lice feed on the skin and secretions on the outside of the animal. The other type is known as sucking lice. These species are blood feeders and pierce the skin. Both types of lice spend their entire lifecycle on the cattle hosts. Off of cattle they survive very poorly and generally only last a few days. Lice are very species specific. So, cattle lice cannot affect people, horses, or any other species.

In general, every herd has some level of lice infestation. Lice are carried from season to season by a small percentage of the herd that act as reservoir hosts. Adults lay eggs on the hair of infected animals. The overall lifecycle for an egg to mature into an adult, and lay eggs is roughly 28 days. Most females lay 1 egg per day.

Clinical signs of lice infected cattle generally begin with constant rubbing and scratching within the herd. Fences, posts, water troughs, trees and any other stationary object could be subject to damage from this rubbing. As the infection and irritation continues, large hairless patches will become evident on animals.

Further diagnosing the issue beyond the clinical signs requires seeing the adult lice on the skin. Parting the hair will reveal the lice. They are very small but can still be seen. They are roughly the size of a grain of sand. The economic threshold for treatment is roughly 10 lice per square inch.

There are several options when it comes to treatment of lice in our cowherds. One option is the avermectin endectocides. These products come in pour-on formulations and injectable formulations. Avermectins treat internal intestinal nematodes, but also treat external parasites such as lice. It is important to note that the injectable formulations do not work on biting lice since they do not blood feed. The other options are topical treatments that are non-systemic. These products are typically pyrethroid products similar to what is commonly used to control horn flies during the summer months. These products are very effective against the adult lice, but do not affect the larvae or eggs. Retreatment is often indicated 14 days after initial treatment. There is a product available that is a pyrethroid in combination with an IGR (insect growth regulator) that not only works very well against the adults, but also works against the eggs and larvae. Use of this particular product eliminates the need to retreat in 14 days.

When treating cattle, it is important to treat the entire group. Missing one animal could allow it to serve as the reservoir for reinfesting the entire herd. The same thought should be given to new additions to the herd from an outside source. Basic biosecurity such as treating and segregating new additions for 30 days is not only good to reduce risk of lice, it is also a great tool in decreasing introduction of other diseases.

Progressivism

faculty at the New School for Social Research in New York.

The Impact of Richard Bernstein: Second Generation Frankfurt School Academic

Prior to that, Bernstein spent 23 years at Haverford College in Pennsylvania where he published some of his most famous books, including Praxis and Action: Contemporary Philosophies of Human Activity (1971), The Restructuring of Social and Political Theory (1978), Beyond Objectivism and Relativism: Science, Hermeneutics and Praxis (1983), and Philosophical Profiles: Essays in a Pragmatic Mode (1986).

In his 1983 book Beyond Objectivism and Relativism: Science, Hermeneutics, and Praxis, Bernstein diagnosed a serious issue that affects much of modern philosophy as it oscillates unendingly between two untenable positions; on the one hand, the dogmatic search for absolute truths, and on the other, the conviction that "anything goes" when it comes to the justification of our most cherished beliefs and ideas. Progressivism thrives on the later.

The third generation of critical theorists, therefore, arose either from Habermas' research students in the United States and at Frankfurt am Main and Starnberg (1971-1982), or from a spontaneous convergence of independently educated scholars like Bernstein throughout the United States and beyond. Therefore, third generation of Critical Theory scholars consists of two groups.

The first group spans a broad time—denying the possibility of establishing any sharp boundaries. The second group of the third generation is instead composed mostly of American scholars who were influenced by Habermas' philosophy during his visits to the United States. From there on, the philosophical reach of Critical Theory in America's academia, educational institutions and social justice warriors can only be theorized from Bernstein to be outward and beyond.

However, if one were to make a conservative estimate of their combined impact upon America's academia, millions of college students, and Progressivism movement—based on all of the evidence, realizations and conclusions uncovered so far in The Sapient Being—Critical Theory and its methods are pervasive, entrenched, and wide spread.
