A Hoxie resident, with an art-related background, judged the high school work and awarded an Outstanding Senior Artist, two-dimensional Best of Show project, three-dimensional Best of Show project, 16 gold stars, 10 silver stars, and 5 bronze stars awards.

All seniors were to represent their artwork on panels. Out of eight seniors that displayed their work, Troy Swint was named "Outstanding Senior Artist" for his overall work for the year. TV Series Featuring Cottonwood Ranch, Don Rowilson

Cottonwood Connections, a new history-focused documentary series, will premiere on Smoky Hills PBS on Sunday, May 15, at 6:00 PM.

Cottonwood Connections expands on the documentary film The Legacy of Cottonwood Ranch, which recently aired on PBS stations across Kansas. The series utilizes the story of the Cottonwood Ranch Historic Site to take a deeper dive into various historical topics related to the Great Plains region, such as building with stone, real-life cowboys, the pre-historic past and the role of mail order in settling the Great Plains.

The new series is hosted by Don Rowilson and presented by The Friends of Cottonwood Ranch, an organization that supports the work of the historic site and has the mission of encouraging historical education about the plains.

"When the documentary film was wrapping up, we discussed that there was still a lot of history to share," said Ed Lowry, director, and producer of the series. "As a historic site that was a settlement home, Cottonwood Ranch can serve as a springboard to talk about so many things. And at the heart of all of that is Don Rowilson."

Rowilson is an archeologist who specialized in studying the pre-historic people of the plains. In 1985, he became site curator for the Cottonwood Ranch Historic Site and devoted himself to studying all the various issues that impacted people settling the region in the late 1800s. Additionally, Don is, himself, a cowboy and was even inducted to the Kansas Cowboy Hall of Fame in 2008 as a historian.

"Don's vast knowledge and experience, his decades of studying and educating about the area, not to mention his engaging personality and character, all combine to make a compelling host for a documentary series like this," Lowry said. "I also appreciate that Don loves to learn more himself and is happy to bring others into the conversation."

Guests in the early episodes include professors, archeologists, museum curators, and a historical re-enactor.

The series will also be made available as an educational resource on the Cottonwood Ranch web site at www.cottonwoodranchks.com following their televised airing.

Episodes of Cottonwood Connections will air on Smoky Hills PBS at 6:00 PM on Sundays, then re-air the following Saturday, also at 6:00.

The first six episodes of the series will include:

Building with Stone (May 15 and 21)

Life of the Cowboys (May 22 and 28)

Archeology (May 29 and June 4)

The Clothes People Wore (June 5 and 11)

Discovering the Pre-Historic Past (June 12 and 18)

The Role of Mail Order in Settling the Plains (June 19 and 25)

What a beautiful Mother's Day yesterday. We went to the Sunflower Senior Center where the Lions Club of Jennings was serving a bountiful Mother's Day dinner. Visited with several people we don't ordinarily see. A lot of residents had families attending the dinner with them.

I am so fortunate to have a wonderful family. I received many phone calls, cards, flowers, and other gifts. Gwen and Jeff Anderson, Angelus, came to go to the dinner with me. Russell Cressler, rural Jennings, stopped by in the afternoon.

The United Methodist Women will be meeting at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday to clean the church kitchen. Then, the Sunflower Senior group will have their potluck at noon. Hope to see you there!

Upcoming Albin Oil Painting Workshop

Join the two-day Albin Oil Painting Workshop to develop your oil painting skills, instructed by experienced artist Laurie Albin. Laurie will introduce oil painting basics, demonstrate techniques, and guide students in color development. The workshop will be held in the Hansen Museum Community Room, Logan, KS, on May 20 & 21 from 9:30 a.m. to 4p.m.

In Laurie's workshop, students will reference a landscape photo to create an original work of art. Ideal for beginners and advanced painters, students will work on value changes in a landscape and learn to add drama to their work. Most of all, students will experience the joy of applying brush and paint to the canvas.

The registration fee is $120.00 for this two-day workshop, with discounts available to Sustaining and Patron Hansen Museum Members. Download registration forms on our website at www.hansenmuseum.org under Classes & Workshops.

This creative learning opportunity is brought to you through the Hansen Museum Continuing Education Program with funds from the Hansen Foundation.

The Museum is open weekdays 9-12 and 1-4; Saturdays 9-12 & 1-5; Sundays and holidays 1-5. We are closed Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's Day. The Museum is handicap-accessible and thanks to the generosity of the Dane G. Hansen Foundation, there is never an admission fee.

The Selden Pinochle group gathered to play their game of pinochle and enjoy lunch together last Thursday. Last week's group included Bob Wessel, Don Juenemann, Mary Galden, Alfred J. Albers. I, Lillian Sulzman had high score with 745, Randy Galden had 2nd high score with 664, and Bernadine Sprester had the most aces. Pat Wessel, Ellis Walker, Marsha Rogers, and Steve Skubal joined for lunch only.

The game and meal were enjoyed by everyone.

The Hoxie Democrat Friday, May 11, 1888

Tom Pratt and sister were in town last Monday. N. Neilson, of Bow Creek, was in town Monday. T. B. Wilson, of Guy, was in the city Saturday. Miss Flora Hopkins will stay several weeks with Isaac Mulholland.

Mr. Sherwood nearly lost a valuable horse by getting into a slough on last Monday.

Mr. Lew Blakely has returned from Carrollton, Mo. He says there is no better place than Hoxie.

A new meat market was opened in the Pratt building last Saturday. Acton & Batty are the proprietors.

Valley township was fully represented in the city Saturday, Pratt, Hopkins, Morgan, Humes, Perkins, Ewing, Wagoner and others.

Commissioner, C. C. Evans favored us with a call last Saturday. He says he has several acres of corn up, and that prospects were never better for a good crop.

Mr. S. P. Davidson, ye editor, was called to Cleveland, Ohio, last Thursday on account of his mother lying at the point of death. He expects to be back about the 20th.

The editor of the Sentinel attended the democratic convention last Saturday. He says it was the first convention he ever attended that he couldn't get anything to drink at. He left as sober as when he came.

Alecyone

Still they come. Who are they that come? Men from the east that want land. Why do they come to Sheridan county? Because we have the best county in the west. Why do they come to Bow Creek township? Because we are only five miles from the railroad station and have no bonds. The prospects for Sheridan county are brighter than ever before; the time is not far distant when we can compete with counties that have had railroad facilities for years.

Sucker

Prairie Dog Scratchings

Still it rains.

The wet weather still continues.

Several sod buildings are tumbling down, being wet nearly through.

We understand the efforts to organize a base ball club in Prairie Dog was a failure, but we hear they intend to complete the organization next Saturday. The boys have the material for a good club.

Now and Then

Valley Township Items

Small grain looks well and there is prospects of a fine crop.

Valley, the banner township, has organized a Republican League.

Mr. J. E. Gettys, of Phillips county, came down last week with a load of potatoes, all of which he sold in our neighborhood.

Plato

Alecyone Gleaming

J. M. Shortridge planted twelve bushels of potatoes and reports them nearly all rotted in the ground.

Luisy Smith is staying on her claim, and if any young man wants to contest it she wants to go with it.

Mrs. Tucker built a summer stable on her claim to prove up on.

A stranger was killed on the railroad near Colby last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo F. Wilson, of the Saline, were Hub visitors Tuesday.

L. D. Speenburg and Chet Miller, prominent business men of Selden, were county seat visitors Monday.

Merchant Beers is in St. Joe, on business this week.

J. H. Brown, one of Hoxie's enterprising liverymen, recently repaired his barn by rebuilding the office.

E. L. Gregg brought a lot of native evergreen trees back with him from Colorado and will give them a trail in his yard.

After spending two months visiting and fixing up his farm in Spring Brook township, John Holland returned to his old home in Indiana the first of the week.

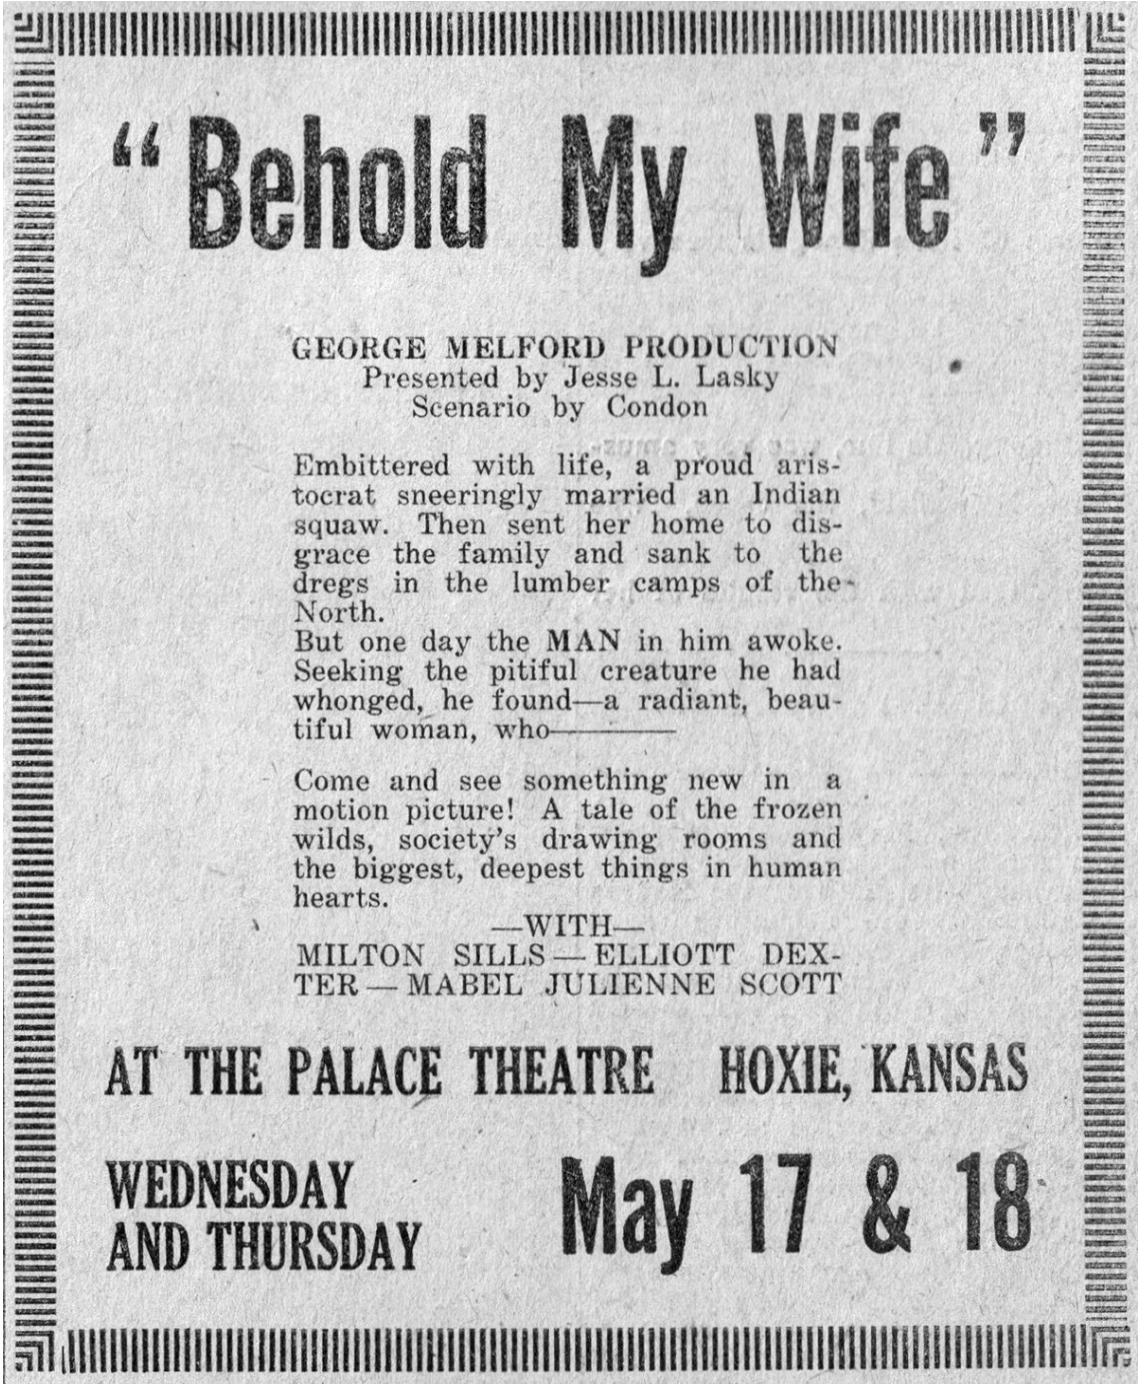

Mr. and Mrs. John Foster of Saline township entertained a large number of friends at a dance last Wednesday night. All that we have heard speak of it reported a good time.

Prof. E. J. Messmore was down to the commencement exercises Friday, his last trip to Hoxie as his school at Selden will close tomorrow and he will leave at once for Nebraska to join his wife who preceded him some time ago.

Mr. Mudge, of Iowa, who is largely interested in the real estate business in this county with W. F. Schultheis, was here last week. The exceptionally bright prospects in this county gave him much hope and he left here feeling good over his possessions.

Five miles northwest of Hoxie lies the farm of Mr. James Eavis and a better piece of mother earth would be hard to locate. He has it finely improved and among the different crops is 140 acres of wheat, which at this writing is looking fine and bids fare to go anywhere from 20 to 40 bushels per acre.

Prof. Green left on Tuesday mornings train to spend his vacation with the old folks at home in Rooks county. After about three weeks he will return to take up his labors in the county institute here and we are told, will teach our school the coming term. Prof. Green is one of the Shall Hoxie Have a Sale Pavilion?

The Sentinel receives numerous letters inquiring about a sale pavilion. Nearly every county around us has one. Stockmen would hold sales here and a better class of livestock would soon be developed throughout the county if better facilities for showing and selling stock in the community were provided.

If the citizens of Hoxie would donate grounds and assist a little we believe that the stockmen of the county could be interested in erecting a creditable sales pavilion here. At any rate it is worth giving some serious thought.

Locals

Ben Korte and son were over from Angelus on business Friday. Ben and his son took a look at our linotype while in town.

Tom Wilcox was here from Lucerne Friday on business. "Everybody is sure busy over our way these days putting out corn and forage crops," said Tom.

Prof. and Mrs. Ellenberger are doing their best to entertain a bright little Miss who took up her home with them Tuesday evening. She has selected a splendid home.

M. G. Blackman has leased the south room of the Van Horn building and has moved his Cushion Tire equipment thereto. This makes him a good room, nicely located for the business.

Sheriff Anderson, Mrs. Anderson and Pete C., Jr., drove up to Lincoln, Nebraska, the last of the week for a short visit with Mrs. Anderson's parents. They returned home Wednesday.

The First National Bank is publishing another one of its strong statements this week. Few banking institutions in the state, outside of the larger towns and cities, have as large resources as the First National.

Prairie Doc® Perspectives: Mentioning the Unmentionables

By Jill Kruse, D.O.

Over the course of my career, I have performed countless pelvic exams on women of all ages from all walks of life. There are two common patient behaviors that I have observed. First, most women leave their socks on. This could be the fact that most stirrups are cold, but it also seems like one feels just a little less exposed when wearing at least one item of their own clothing. The other thing that almost every woman does in the exam room is hide her undergarments under her pile of clothes. It is interesting that almost everyone, me included, feels the need to cover and hide their “unmentionables” when they are about to bare the very areas normally covered by these garments.

Therefore, it is no surprise that it can be difficult for women to voice concerns when it comes to their “private areas.” These areas are just that, private! Women do not often visit with family or friends about incontinence, menstrual irregularities, or pelvic pain. It may be easy to discuss gallbladder issues or a migraine headache, but it is much more embarrassing to ask a friend if she leaks a bit of urine when she sneezes, jumps, or coughs after birthing a child. This condition is common, and it can be treated. But if we don’t talk about it, we may not realize when something is “normal” or if it is something to be concerned about.

It is perfectly fine for women to hide our underwear from our health care provider, but let’s not hide our concerns or be embarrassed about discussing the areas covered by these garments. If we choose not to talk about it, what may seem like a minor nuisance could lead to a bigger problem. For example, vaginal spotting or bleeding after menopause is never normal and should always be reported to your provider. It could be caused by harmless uterine fibroids, but it might also be a sign of uterine cancer. The sooner you discuss it with your doctor, the better.

Unfortunately, I have seen too many women who suffer in silence because they figure whatever is happening to them must be “normal” or just a sign of “getting older” or is the “price of having children”. Primary care providers and obstetrician-gynecologists are ready to help you talk about these sensitive topics. When you uncover and discuss your concerns, they will listen, diagnose, and treat with care.

So go ahead, keep your socks on and hide your “unmentionable” clothing, but please, never hide your health concerns.

FHSU Receives Donation of Extensive Art Collection

By FHSU University Communications

Fort Hays State University is pleased to announce a large donation of artwork to the university’s permanent collection. The donation is curated as an academic research collection and encompasses nearly 200 artworks by renowned New York-based artists.

The donor, Rosemary Hornak, is a Midwest-based artist, art collector, and retired real estate developer. She worked as a studio artist alongside her brother, founding Photorealist artist, Ian Hornak (1944-2002). Portions of her collection have been the subject of museum exhibitions nationwide. In the last 15 years, she has donated hundreds of artworks by the country’s leading artists to approximately 50 museums throughout the United States including, the Smithsonian Institution, Library of Congress, Dartmouth College, and The George Washington University.

Rosemary Hornak’s son brought Fort Hays State to her attention after he graduated from the university in 2021, and she chose FHSU as the beneficiary of this portion of her collection. FHSU history instructor Hollie Marquess helped facilitate the donation.

The collection will reside in FHSU’s Schmidt Foundation Center for Art and Design. It includes comprehensive retrospective sub-collections of artwork by Jon Carsman (1944-1987), Ian Hornak (1944-2002) – the donor’s late brother – and Scott Kahn (1946).

Jon Carsman was one of the most successful artists in New York during the 1960s, ’70s, and ’80s, having been credited as one of the artists who helped to re-popularize Realism in painting following its demise during the Abstract Expressionist movement of the 1950s. Carsman’s artwork is owned by most major museums in the United States, including the National Gallery of Art, Smithsonian Institution, Metropolitan Museum of Art; and locally, the Wichita Art Museum, Marianna Kistler Beach Museum of Art at Kansas State University, and the Spencer Museum of Art at the University of Kansas.

Ian Hornak was one of the founding artists of the Photorealist movement in the 1960s and later one of the country’s most celebrated artists. He was described by the New York Times as “right at the top of the list of romantically descriptive painters today.” His artwork is included in the collections of major museums nationwide, including the Smithsonian Institution, Library of Congress, Dartmouth College’s Hood Museum, Museum of Fine Arts Boston, and locally, the Albrecht Kemper Museum of Art in St. Joseph, Mo. His paintings were the subject of Barack Obama’s Presidential Inaugural exhibition at the Federal Reserve on the National Mall in Washington D.C. in 2013 and have sold for up to $165,000 each.

Scott Kahn is currently one of the most popular artists in the United States. Several of his paintings recently sold at Christie’s and Phillips auction houses for nearly $1 million each. Kahn’s work has been exhibited nationally and internationally, and several of his pieces are included in the collections of major public, corporate, and private collections around the world.

Rosemary Hornak, the donor, said, “I hope for this donation to help to attract additional national attention and respect for Fort Hays State, as well as to aid the students, faculty, and the Hays community in their studies, work, and personal enjoyment.”

She has committed to ongoing donations to the university as she downsizes her collection, including artworks by some of the most renowned artists in the world, including Robert Indiana, Jasper Johns, Robert Motherwell, and Robert Rauschenberg.

In addition to instructor Marquess, the university is grateful to Colin Schmidtberger, the director of the Moss-Thorns Gallery, and Schuyler Coates, a director of development at the Fort Hays State Foundation, for their invaluable assistance in making this donation possible.

Great Kansas Fishing Derby Returns for Second Year

An angler’s prized catch may actually be worth a prize this spring and summer in Kansas, thanks to the return of the Great Kansas Fishing Derby. This year’s Derby will run May 15 to September 15, 2022. During that time, anglers can try their luck at catching one of more than 500 specially tagged fish located in public waterbodies across the Sunflower State. The statewide competition is sponsored by the Kansas Department of Wildlife and Parks (KDWP), Kansas Wildscape Foundation, Bass Pro-Cabela’s Outdoor Fund, Kansas State Fair, Firewater Music Festival, City of Independence, and many local retailers.

“It’s a new year, but our goal remains the same - get people fishing and generate support for communities and nearby waters,” said David Breth, KDWP sportfishing education coordinator. “Participants will be excited to know that we’ve extended this year’s Derby to give anglers more time to win. We also added a few more lakes, and there are more tagged fish.”

How It Works

Pre-registration is not required, and participation is free, though normal fishing license requirements remain in effect. To get your Kansas fishing license, visit <https://bit.ly/3kUo3ko> or download KDWP’s mobile licensing app, “Go Outdoors Kansas,” here <https://bit.ly/3MWbCjo>.

Anglers who catch a tagged fish as part of the Great Kansas Fishing Derby should remove the tag and enter the number at ksfishderby.com. A follow-up communication will notify the angler of what they’ve won and where to claim their prize. Ksfishderby.com will also allow anglers and non-anglers to register to win additional prizes through random drawings.

“Businesses, municipalities, and more are supporting the Great Kansas Fishing Derby by sponsoring many of our prizes, and without their support, the Derby wouldn’t exist,” added Breth. “Thanks to them, anglers can win concert tickets, state fair kid’s packs, gift cards to Bass Pro/Cabelas and KDWP, fishing tackle, experiences, cabin stays, and cash this year.”

If that’s not incentive enough, the Derby offers another major prize this year. Every angler who catches and redeems a valid derby tag will be entered into a drawing to win a lifetime hunting and fishing license sponsored by Kansas Wildscape Foundation.

Where To Fish

All participating waterbodies are open to the public and managed, in whole or in-part, by KDWP. Also included in the list of participating waters are ponds and lakes currently enrolled in KDWP’s Community Fisheries Assistance Program. By leveraging funding from federal excise taxes on fishing equipment, KDWP leases public access – at no additional cost to the public – to gorgeous waters that once required special county, community or city permits. To learn more about these waters, visit <https://bit.ly/3yIVGDb>.

A complete list of waters with fish tagged for the Derby will be posted on <https://beyond.fishing/derby/> on May 14.

“Our staff will tag as many species of fish as possible, including bass, crappie, walleye, catfish, drum and carp,” said Breth. “Last year, someone won $250 in KDWP gift cards by catching a tagged wahoo.”

“We will list the species tagged on <https://ksoutdoors.com/> on the lake pages... If you catch one, make sure to snap a photo and share with us on social media or post online using #ksfishderby.” If a tagged fish meets legal length limits, the fish may be kept. However, anglers may release their catch if they first remove the tag (see <https://ksfishderby.com> for instructions).

Businesses and groups interested in sponsoring tagged fish for this year’s Derby can find sponsorship details at <https://beyond.fishing/derby/>.

Action Alert: Protect Farmers and Ranchers from Wall Street Climate Rules and Regulation

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) proposes to require publicly traded companies to provide climate-related information from their entire supply chain in their filings and annual reports, including potentially invasive and burdensome information about farms.

According to SEC Commissioner Hester M. Peirce, she writes that “We are Not the Securities and Environment Commission - At Least Not Yet.” Commissioner Peirce, on the minority side of 3-1 vote to publish the rules, writes, “This proposal steps outside (the SEC) statutory limits by using the disclosure framework to achieve objectives that are not ours to pursue and by pursuing those objectives by means of disclosure mandates that may not comport with First Amendment limitations on compelled speech.”

Companies would be required to report on greenhouse gas emissions, climate-related targets and goals, as well as how climate risks impact their business. This is an end run around legislation to get companies to report certain climate change information in their financial reports.

WHY IT MATTERS: The rule extends reporting requirements for public companies to report on Scope 3 emissions, which are the result of activities from assets not owned or controlled by an organization but contribute to its value chain such as farms and ranches.

This could create burdensome reporting requirements for family farms and ranches selling into supply chains and force the disclosure of private information. And may create multiple, new sources of substantial costs and liabilities. These include reporting obligations, technical challenges, significant financial and operational disruption and the risk of financially crippling legal liabilities.

Farmers and ranchers are focused on growing the food, fuel and fiber this country needs, and have not had to worry about regulations intended for Wall Street. Unlike the large corporations currently regulated by the SEC, family farms and ranches don’t have teams of compliance officers.

Write to the SEC today and tell them to stop this invasive regulatory overreach! The deadline is May 20. Send your message today by going to <https://p2a.co/k7JzcYZ>.

Kenneth Yoke

By Kevin Bottrell

kbottrell@nwkans.com

Former Hoxie resident Kenneth Yoke will never forget his professional baseball career and his brush with the 1950s New York Yankees, one of the greatest ballclubs of all time.

Yoke, now 88, and living in Goodland, played professional baseball for eight years starting in 1951. He attended high school in Wichita and then came to northwest Kansas to play a handful of games with the semi-pro Norton Red Sox. In those days many towns in the area had semi-pro teams, including Goodland. Yoke played against the Goodland Tigers, except for one tournament in which he joined the Goodland squad.

While in Norton, he was spotted by a scout for the Denver Bears. The Bears were a Class A team affiliated with the Boston Braves.

Yoke was a left-handed pitcher, who describes himself as a “junkball” pitcher, meaning he threw screwballs, knuckleballs, and changeups, but lacked a good fastball.

“When I was in high school, I was a fastball pitcher,” he said. “I learned very quickly you don’t throw by these pro hitters. You pitch smart and throw to the corners.”

The spitball was illegal, but there was a trick.

“When you get ahead of a hitter, throw outside so he couldn’t touch it, and while everyone was looking at the batter, spit into the glove,” he said. “The ball gets covered when you get it back from the catcher. I only tried it a few times. The city players taught me all these tricks. I was just a country player.

Yoke was sold to the Class C El Dorado, Ark., team, where he won 20 games. He won another 20 games each in Amarillo and El Paso as he bounced around the Texas League. Players were traded quick in those days.

“In Oklahoma, the ballclub owner was on the phone and I happened to walk in to pick up my mail,” he said. “Because he happened to see me, I got sold to Amarillo right then and there. I had to move to Amarillo that day, and my wife and I had just found an apartment.”

Yoke was also a good hitter, doing a lot of pinch-hitting and even blasting a few home runs.

“In those days when you hit a home run, you run around the stands and people would stuff dollar bills in your cap,” he said.

Minor league players weren’t paid very much.

“The most I ever made was $750 a month in the minors,” Yoke said.

Yoke even had a brief stint playing in Mexico, but didn’t last long before he wanted to come back to the U.S. He described the minor leagues as a family atmosphere, where everyone knew everyone. He and his wife Wilma, a Hoxie native, even got married on the field in El Paso. Wilma followed him wherever his career led, and they lived in Hoxie during the offseason.

Toward the middle of his career, Yoke was called up for one Spring Training with the New York Yankees, where he played in a number of games with the famous squad. In the 1950s, all the teams did their Spring Training in Florida, and the Yankees were based in Ocala.

“Each day there was a big chart on the wall and the managers picked their teams and headed to one of the other camps,” he said.

Yoke recalled pitching a game with the legendary Yogi Berra catching.

“They were hitting the tar out of me,” he said. “The manager

By Carolyn Nelson, DTP Sponsor

Mark Zerr and Bert Maxfield from Oakley American Implement presented Mr. Mark Heier, Wheatland High School Industrial Arts instructor, with a check for $2,500.00 to support the Industrial Arts program on Wednesday, May 4.

Funds came as a result of the winter service program. When customers bring equipment to the Oakley American Implement for a winter service, they can choose one of three locations and AI donates $100.00 on behalf of the customer.

In the spring, American Implement representatives award the checks to the schools and vo-tech programs selected by the customers.

Mr. Heier stated, "It is a great thing American Implement does for schools and the industrial arts programs. It helps purchase equipment. We appreciate the generosity from the community and American Implement."

GOAL RUSH! Just one of four shots lands the hockey puck in the net. Which shot scores the goal? Take a guess.

CITY-ITES! Shuffle letters of each person's name to find the name of a U.S. city:
1. Al Tanta. 2. Ed Vern. 3. Hope Nix. 4. Stu Noho. 5. Dot Teri. 6. Les Tate.

SUM TRICK! "Take a number," says the magician. "Multiply by two, add six, divide by two, and subtract the original number. Now, let me concentrate." He hesitates, thinks, and then says suddenly: "Your answer is three." And alakazam, it is just that.

How does he know? Because the answer is always one-half of the number he adds. If he adds six, answer is three; eight, four, etc.

Of course, the number he adds is always an even one.

Kenneth Yoke

called time and turned to Yogi and said ‘what’s this kid got anyway?’ and Yogi said, ‘I don’t know I haven’t caught one yet.’”

Along with Berra, Yoke was able to rub shoulders with some of baseball’s all-time greats such as Gil McDougald, Bill Skowron, and Johnny Blanchard. His locker was next to Joe DiMaggio, the center fielder who still holds baseball’s hitting streak record.

“He was kind of a loner,” Yoke said. “The team respected him more than they were his friends.”

Yoke tried to talk to DiMaggio when they were in the locker room together, but never got very far.

“When you’re a rookie, you’d keep your mouth shut,” he said. “DiMaggio never mingled with the younger guys.”

Also on the Yankees squad at the time was a young Mickey Mantle, who was the same age as Yoke.

“He’d give you the time of day,” Yoke said. “He was the fastest guy in the majors. He struck out a lot but he hit several home runs out of the stadium.”

Among Yoke’s fellow pitchers were names like Ryne Duren, a player with poor eyesight but a rocket of a fastball, and Whitey Ford.

“Ford was a normal guy, he would talk to you,” Yoke said. “He had very good control in his pitching.”

Yankees Manager Casey Stengel wanted fastball pitchers, so Yoke wasn’t signed to the team when it came time for the regular season, and he returned to the minors.

Yoke finished playing professional baseball in 1958 playing for first Indianapolis and then Colorado Springs. He continued to play in semi-pro teams for many years.

After finishing with baseball, he got a job building golf courses around the area, including nine holes in Goodland. Later, Yoke and his brother bought the pool hall in Goodland formerly owned by Dean Jones in the 1000 block of Main Street in. The hall included a restaurant and bar. He also drove a truck for Tellow Freight and worked for Great Western Sugar loading sugar beets onto rail cars. In 1992, he built the remaining nine holes of the Goodland golf course.

Wilma died in 2019, 63 years since that day when they were married at home plate in El Paso. The couple had four children and lived in Goodland since 1969, and Ken still lives here today, ready to tell his baseball stories to any appreciative audience.

Special thanks to Ron Vignery for his help with this article.
