Taylor Porsch Joins Twin Creeks Extension

By Levi Gleason, Sentinel Staff Writer
Community Vitality is the ability of a community to sustain itself and provide residents the opportunity to pursue their own life goals and experience positive life outcomes. Sheridan County now welcomes Taylor Porsch, who has taken on the roles of Community Vitality Agent, and Twin Creeks Extension District Director overseeing four counties.
Taylor Porsch is a Hoxie native. As many others in this area, she had a passion for leadership and agriculture. Due to this passion, Taylor became heavily involved in The Hoxie Jr/Sr High School FFA Chapter, where she even served as chapter president her junior and senior year. After high school, the plan was to seek higher education, pursuing a degree in Organizational Behavior Management (the study of people and appliance to business).
Taylor, now residing in Selden, stays very busy outside of work with her two-year-old daughter, working when she can and playing when she can. It is exciting to see what having her in this role will do for the community, and if you get the chance, wish her well in the position!

American Legion Post #221 Donates Electric Wheelchair

The American Legion Post #221 recently gave a motorized wheelchair to Vikki Wells, of Damar. This project began with Doug Cass wanting to find someone in need of a fairly new wheelchair that had belonged to his brother, Howard. After searching for a veteran to donate the chair to and not finding one, they elected to give it to the wife of a veteran.

SHERIDAN COUNTY Benefit WALK

Tops $100,000!

The Sheridan County Benefit Walk Event went exceptionally well on Friday, June 3. We once again had an overflow crowd who enjoyed a delicious pulled pork supper with all the trimmings.
After the meal, a Memorial Tribute was held for 28 individuals who had left a Memorial to the Benefit Walk in the past year.
It was a beautiful evening for eating sugar cookies, looking at the luminaries, and launching balloons to the heavens.
The Silent Auction is garnering more attention each year. This year we had several bids that were placed in the final seconds!

As usual, many people stayed until the end to see if they had won any of the coveted Raffle prizes. The list of winners is below. All told, the fund-raising Event brought in just over $100,000! Every person that purchased a luminary, a raffle ticket, or even a sugar cookie helped out. Each business or individual that donated prizes played a pivotal role in the success of the Event.
We, the Benefit Board, take our role as stewards of this money seriously and thank you all for your generous support.

New Stylist at Jennifer's Salon

By Levi Gleason, Sentinel Intern & Staff Writer
Hoxie has another cosmetologist. Harley Kester is a recent graduate of Hays Academy of Hair Design, who has named her business 'American Beauty'. She is operating out of Jennifer's Salon at 804 Main Street.
Born in Holdridge NE, Harley had her share of the Kansas life, moving to Long Island as a child, and to Phillipsburg with her aunt and uncle.
During her junior year, Harley wanted to follow two career paths, diesel mechanics and cosmetology. In the end, she chose to go with cosmetology and has so far decided that she made the right choice.
Harley hopes to eventually settle and start a family with her boyfriend on his family's farm at New Almelo, helping with farm work and advancing her career as a stylist. To make an appointment, call 785-432-3154.

J. W. McGlasson and J. B. McPherson have purchased a self binder for the purpose of cutting their own and other people's grain in the county.

H. E. Colby has fenced in a pasture, stopped a road and is running water into his pasture from the wind mill. He has built a good barn and expects to put up a good frame house this summer.

Henry Patterson was in the city three times last week and began again on Sunday and Monday of this week to break the record. Pat is one of the live men of our county and is always a welcome visitor in the city. He says he has one hundred acres in corn, and he thinks he can afford to spend a little time and money amongst us poor people.

W. P. Hemphill was fooling with a buzz saw this week.

Mr. C. A. Taylor writes that he is having a good time in New York City.

Moser Bro.'s put on three tin roofs this week and have a dozen more under contract.

In a time of Amazon shopping and Walmart pickup, how are you keeping customers shopping at your local business?

Deb Brown of SaveYour.town presented an entrepreneurship webinar, “Marketing in Your Small Town,” to K-State Research & Extension on February 1, 2019. Although Brown presented this over three years ago, the information she shared is still relevant to marketing in our small communities. Brown laid out the three following rules for small town marketing:

- Entice the Customer
- Be Different
- Live in the 21st Century

How do you get customers in the door? Brown notes that curb appeal is an important factor. She states that 70% of first-time sales are a result of curb appeal. Extending the inside of your store to the outside can be a great step to reach customers. But don’t stop at updating your front door. Brown suggests looking at the back of your building and ensuring it matches the image you want to portray to your customers.

Signage is an important visual factor as well. Do you have a sign for your business? Is it high enough to see as people drive by? Does it tell people what you do? Some locals know by word of mouth, but writing out what your business does is a great way to get people in the door.

Word of mouth is very effective marketing, so it is important to educate locals about your business. Brown suggested hosting an open house twice a year and to invite local press.

“There’s no rule that says you must do your work the same as everyone else,” says Brown. Determine your market and think about different ways to reach them. Become tech savvy. Brown suggests using an electronic device to show customers product information or how the product could be used in their home.

Brown conveyed the importance of partnering with other businesses and getting out in your local community. Do not underestimate the effect of joining your local, summertime parade. Get your employees and their children involved. When local teams and events ask for support, make sure to do so. You do not need to give a monetary donation every time. Brown suggests hanging their flyer in your front window or letting them host an event in your space.

Brown’s last rule, live in the 21st Century, is one that some small-town businesses may have trouble with, but businesses need to use the tools we currently have. “Your older customers won’t always be around, and you will need to cultivate new customers,” Brown states. According to Brown, 97% of customers today search for local businesses online. Are you there for them to find? Claim your Google listing and keep it updated with pictures. Create a website and keep it updated and active. Creating a website may seem daunting, but there are several tools online that make creating a website easy; or you can have one made by someone else. It is important that you, as the owner, update the website regularly.

Social media is another tool. Look into the different platforms and decide which would be best for you and your business. Use pictures and hashtags, and tag people and places to tell your story and make it easier for people to find you. If you are not going to regularly use social media, Brown suggests not using it at all. People may believe you are not open. Share posts from other local businesses and links relevant to your business. Brown also notes that an intern should not be in charge of your social media presence, as you want to be sure that each post represents your brand. According to Brown, businesses should plan for 12 to 24 months to build a social media presence. Take small steps and try a few different things.

We all should make a point to shop locally. But telling people to shop local is not going to get them in the doors. Guilt does not work. Brown says that providing real value and service will keep local customers coming. It is important to know your products and show your products. Train your staff and set expectations across the board so that every customer gets the same experience with any staff they may encounter in the store.

Let your customers touch your products. As Brown says, this is something that Amazon cannot compete with. Rearranging the store can keep customers interested. Are your popular products right by the counter? Move them to the back so that customers have to walk through your less popular product and browse on their way through.

Are your marketing techniques still working? Know your market, tell your story, use the tools available to you and you will see your business grow. Brown conveys a myriad of good marketing tips and states that you don’t have to do it all, but I challenge you to choose two goals for this year and start.

I encourage you to watch the full video on YouTube. I also encourage you to go to Brown’s website (saveyour.town) and explore more tools. For further information on marketing your business in our rural communities, visit your local Twin Creeks District Extension office.

LaTurner Introduces the Jobs and Opportunities for Medicaid Act

Last week, Congressman Jake LaTurner introduced the Jobs and Opportunities for Medicaid Act in the U.S. House of Representatives. This legislation would simply require all able-bodied adults to work or volunteer for no less than 20 hours per week to remain eligible for Medicaid benefits.

“The key to growing our economy is getting more Americans back to work. We have countless employers looking for workers right now in Kansas and the ongoing labor shortage is making it difficult for small businesses to stay afloat,” said Rep. Jake LaTurner. “I am proud to introduce the Jobs and Opportunities for Medicaid Act because I believe the best welfare program is a job. This legislation will help able-bodied adults get back into the workforce and end their reliance on taxpayer-funded government assistance.”
“During the COVID-19 pandemic, Democrats created a culture of idleness and dependency, as evidenced by the 11.4 million jobs open in this country, 11 million work ready adults that could fill those jobs, and billions of dollars in increased spending,” said Rep. Rodney Davis. “If families have any chance at keeping up with skyrocketing inflation, which is raging above 8 percent, we have to incentivize work – and that starts with requiring able-bodied SNAP and Medicaid recipients to join, or rejoin, the workforce. I’m proud to join my colleague Rep. LaTurner in introducing this legislation. With smart reforms to federal programs, we can create jobs, grow our economy, and be better stewards of taxpayer dollars.”

Background:
We have seen the positive impact of work requirements at the state level. When Kansas implemented work requirements and time limited benefits, the number of able-bodied adults receiving Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits dropped by 75 percent. Nearly 60 percent of those leaving the program found employment within 12 months and their incomes rose by an average of 127 percent per year.

While Medicaid is a social welfare program, there does not currently exist any work requirement for able-bodied adults who receive Medicaid benefits. President Trump proposed Medicaid work requirements in the form of a “community engagement” requirement, which showed projected savings of between $130 billion and $152 billion over 10 years.

Original Cosponsors: Reps. Rodney Davis (R-IL), Dusty Johnson (R-SD), Brian Mast (R-FL), Michael Guest (R-MS), William Timmons (R-SC), Bruce Westerman (R-AR), Jake Ellzey (R-TX), and John Joyce (R-PA)

What Were You Wearing?
Survivor Art Installation
at Summer Art Walk

During the Hays Arts Council’s Summer Art Walk, Options Domestic & Sexual Violence Services will host an art installation titled “What Were You Wearing?” to bring awareness about sexual assault to Northwest Kansas.

“What Were You Wearing?” was inspired by a poem by Dr. Mary Simmerling titled “What I Was Wearing”. The goals of the art installation, which displays over 50 outfits, are to bust the myth that provocative clothing is the cause of sexual assault, a stereotype often used for victim blaming; and to bring a measure of comfort to other survivors by showing that the choices they made in their clothing did not cause their sexual assault.

The “What Were You Wearing?” Art Installation will be on display during the Hays Arts Council’s Summer art Walk on Friday, June 17, at Downing-Nelson Oil Company (111 W 10th St, Hays). Exhibit is open from 6:30 to 9:30 pm.

“We are incredibly grateful to the Downing-Nelson Oil Company and the many community members who volunteered their time and talents to bring the art exhibit to life,” said Jennifer Hecker, Executive Director of Options. “And to give a voice to victims who have been silenced by victim blaming.”

The art exhibit is sponsored by the Wonder Women League, an affinity group of the United Way of Ellis County, who provided funding support and donating items to expand and enhance the art installation. Volunteers from Eagle Radio made audio recordings of each story that viewers can listen to during the event by scanning a QR code. Volunteers from the Wonder Women League and Options Staff will be available to guide viewers through the event and assist with the QR codes.

This event contains sensitive and potentially triggering material. Sexual abuse, sexual violence, rape, and personal trauma are all mentioned within this exhibition. Options will have advocates available if anyone would like to speak privately.

If you or someone you know needs help because of domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking, or human trafficking, contact Options 24-hours a day, 7 days a week FREE. You can reach an Advocate via helpline at 800-794-4624; text HOPE to 847411; Live Chat at help4abuse.org; or download the “My Mobile Options” app from the App Store or Google Play. of weaponry. Matthew probably was accustomed to carrying a weapon in his previous employment as a tax collector. In other words, brandishing a sword would be normal for several of the Apostles.

Third, it was common practice among the public to carry swords while traveling in Jesus’ day. People would travel by foot or by beast. Anything over 20 miles or so would require more than a day. Often people would spend the night under the stars. With many towns miles apart, people often find themselves in the middle of nowhere during the day. These circumstances made it easy for thieves to prey on people. When people traveled, swords were lightweight and effective, making them the most practical thing at the time for protection.

The Bible does not speak specifically about guns. Still, it appears clear that Jesus and the Apostles had no issue with carrying a weapon.

There are other social issues I would like to discuss, but I am near that 900-word mark, so until next time - God bless.

Diving In

By Glenn Brunkow, Pottawatomie County farmer and rancher

How many old westerns have we seen the hero crawling across the desert, desperate to find a drink of water? He turns his canteen upside down and only sand runs out. Or the cattle baron uses unscrupulous methods to gain the water rights of the small ranches.

Water has been the source of conflict since the dawn of mankind. It is the one thing that sustains life, the one thing without which we can’t live. That is one absolute that we cannot change, and conflict over water will only become more serious in the future.

Water is absolutely critical to those of us in agriculture. It is necessary for our crops and livestock. I am not telling you anything you do not know. However, we need to have a serious discussion about water and water rights.

Kansas Farm Bureau’s (KFB) water policy has grown over the years, but it is something we need to take a deep dive into. Maybe the policy we have is good enough, but I suspect we need to make some changes. Those changes might be small tweaks, or they might be major overhauls. It is up to you, the grassroots Farm Bureau member.

That is why we are hosting a series of meetings around the

Value Them Both
Constitutional Amendment
Receives Support

Today an alliance of over 200 Kansas Medical and Mental Health Professionals has publicly issued a statement expressing support for the Value Them Both constitutional amendment.

At present, the group consists of more than 120 doctors, including nine OBGYNs, 70 family medicine physicians, and additional representatives from the fields of neurosurgery, cardiology, anesthesia, surgery, pediatrics, internal medicine, pathology, emergency medicine, and other essential specialties. Doctors of Pharmacy, nurses, and licensed psychotherapists and counselors round out the coalition. The coalition is expected to grow in coming weeks.

Dr. Kelly Byrd, a Kansas City-based pediatrician raised in Wichita, spoke on behalf of the coalition.

“We’re here to represent over 200 Medical and Mental Health Professionals in support of the Value Them Both Amendment,” said Byrd. “We came together through colleague-to-colleague outreach because all of us share a dedication for caring for the physical health and emotional well-being of our patients. Together we’ve written an open letter to explain why passing the Value Them Both Amendment is vital to returning our state to a place where the abortion industry is not left unlimited or unregulated and should not be allowed to police itself.”

Dr. Lisa Gilbert, a Wichita-based family physician providing full-spectrum primary care, including women’s health and obstetrics, said coalition members, “had become aware that an unprecedented Kansas Supreme Court decision in 2019 removed the legal foundation for decades of bipartisan-passed, common-sense laws regulating abortion practices.”

“The court decreed that virtually any limitation or regulation on abortion are presumed unconstitutional,” said Gilbert. “This sweeping 2019 ruling was then used to strike down basic protections for women, including standard inspection, safety, and sanitation requirements for abortion facilities. Sadly, Kansas is a destination for extreme abortions”

Mackenzie Haddix, spokesperson for the Value Them Both Coalition, which is leading statewide grassroots efforts to promote passage of the amendment, expressed appreciation for the group’s support.

“We know that highly educated medical and mental health professionals are the most valued and respected voices when it comes to the health and well-being of women and children. We’re grateful for their support in solidarity with the Value Them Both Coalition and hundreds of thousands of Kansans who share the belief that women deserve better than to be left vulnerable to an unregulated abortion industry.”

The coalition welcomes others to join in support of the statement, by emailing media@valuethemboth.com. Membership list is available to members of the media upon request.

The Value Them Both Coalition is made up of Kansas citizens and groups who believe every human life has value. We are committed to advocating across our state for the passage of the Value Them Both Amendment to ensure that Kansas can stop unlimited abortion from coming to our state and can continue to pass laws that put the health and safety of mothers and babies before the abortion industry. We are led by Kansans for Life, Kansas Catholic Conference, and Kansas Family Voice.

state, and I am imploring you to attend one and add your opinion to the process. This may be the biggest issue we have ever faced and one that will shape agriculture in Kansas for a long time. If we are not at the table, decisions will be made without our input that could have catastrophic consequences.

I don’t know how to make this any clearer or any more urgent. There are parties involved are pulling from every direction: municipal, agricultural and industry. We must make sure any policy adopted allows us to continue to produce food and fiber.

KFB will host a series of 2-hour moderated discussions around the state to gather feedback on possible policy changes. All meeting will begin at 8:30 a.m. and are scheduled for the following locations:

- June 28, Manhattan
 - June 29, Hoxie
 - July 6, Hutchinson
 - July 7, Dodge City
 - July 14, Burlington
- Participants are encouraged to register at www.kfb.org/advocacy.

We know your time now is precious and this is not an easy time of year to get away, but we must get moving on this now, so we have policy ready to be voted on at KFB’s annual meeting in December.

I cannot emphasize enough how much we need everyone to participate. I would also ask that you do some research and education and become acquainted with water policy from all across the state and not just your own area. Our water issues are many and varied and we must produce a unified policy that will best represent our varied needs. Again, I cannot say strongly enough how important this issue is or how much your ideas and opinions are needed. Please plan to attend one of these meetings.

Voting Against Unconstitutional Gun Bans

As a father of four young children, my heart hurts for the families of the victims, communities, and our nation when senseless, tragic violence strikes. These violent acts, however, do not give Congress the full authority to strip law-abiding Americans of their constitutional rights.

This week, I voted no to House Democrats’ unconstitutional gun ban and red flag laws. The Second Amendment is a load-bearing wall of our Constitution. Elected leaders should not strip that right away from innocent people. Instead, Congress should:

- Support and fund our law enforcement
- Secure our schools
- Address the root causes of these violent acts
- Prosecute and punish those who break the law

As your member of Congress, and as an American, I will work to find solutions like these while maintaining our Constitutional rights.

Listen to my full thoughts in each week’s Mann Minute.

Kansas Teacher Hall of Fame 2022 Induction

My staff attended the Kansas Teacher Hall of Fame banquet in Dodge City earlier this month. This year’s induction class was especially meaningful to me because one of the incredible educators who taught me was honored: Joanne Emerick from Hoxie, Kansas. Mrs. Emerick has touched the lives of hundreds of students throughout her 31-year tenure as a history and government teacher. I can’t think of anyone more deserving of this distinguished honor.

Congratulations to all of the 2022 inductees! Great educators help shape the leaders of tomorrow. These teachers epitomize what it means to care for and support their students.

Inflation Hits 40-Year High

The Consumer Price Index (CPI) hit a yet-another 40-year high in May. Last month marked the largest 12-month increase in prices since December 1981.

Kansans are facing historic prices across the board, and it’s hurting the livelihoods of hardworking families. Inflation is a tax on all Americans. To get inflation under control, strengthen the supply chain, and stop costs from rising even further, we need to get Americans back to work, quit printing money, and end the federal government’s spending addiction.

WHILE Jones prefers to get his exercise riding a bicycle, his friend Smith likes to run. When Jones bikes, he averages 10 miles per hour, which is three times Smith's average speed on foot. Last week, both Jones and Smith left at the same time from the same place in Longville, agreeing to meet each other in Shortville, before returning home. Jones's trip on a winding road totaled 10 miles, and Smith's trip via a cross-country shortcut totaled three and one-third miles. Both reached the same spot in Shortville at exactly 12 o'clock noon. Question: At what time did they depart together from Longville? Answer in 30 seconds.
